Tablets aid learning at primary school

ST Mary's Catholic Primary School at Buckfast is taking a modern approach to learning.

Funds raised by the school's friends group have been used to buy all pupils in Year 6 mobile computers.

The tablets have been particularly useful in preparing the children for forthcoming SATs tests in English and maths.

Year 6 teacher and ICT co-ordinator Chris Carty said: 'The new approach has inspired the children to become more independent with their revision and we are already seeing some positive results.'

The tablets have given the school flexibility across the curriculum, using a wide range of different apps to enhance the children's learning not just in year six but across the whole school.
